In the present day competitive world, Industries would like to have more profit and higher productivity with good quality at low cost for their survival and growth. In order to achieve above objective, Industries shall be equipped with accident investigation and reporting system to find out root causes of accidents and fulfillment of statutory provision. Finding the causes of an accident and taking steps to control or eliminate it can help prevent similar accidents from happening in the future. The prime objective of accident investigation is prevention which identifies any unsafe conditions, acts, or procedures that may have contributed to the injury/illness to the worker and prevents others from being injured in the same manner. Finding the causes of an accident and taking steps to control or eliminate it can help prevent similar accidents from happening in the future. Incident Investigations are objective fact-finding and information collection practices to correct/improve systems, and are not intended to assign blame/fault.
